Online Transform Star

I help organisations to leverage technology for more business so they can gain digital competitive advantage.

Matthew has over 30 years experience working with IT within government, private and not for profit organisations. He is committed to delivering strong high availability solutions while leveraging technology for competitive advantage.

Matthew's successful projects included rolling out servers around Australia for the Department of Human Services and managing its national reporting including over 1500 reports per day.

To help with delivering IT globally he has developed a website with over 450 pieces of content that delivers information to over 1 million users per year.

Since 2017 Matthew has taught 14 different IT subjects for Central Queensland University. This includes Website Development, IT Project Management and Workflow Analysis...

Matthew has created a Business Transformation Framework that can be tailored for your business. Contact us if your business could update and transform for the changing marketplace.
